

Truist announces COVID-19 relief measures for communities

$25 million philanthropic pledge will support basic needs, medical supplies and financial hardship relief

Truist Financial Corporation's Truist Cares initiative supports the short and long-term needs of communities, clients and teammates in response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Truist Cares charitable grants will be made to our community partners to support and expand technology initiatives and programs with an emphasis on youth, seniors and small businesses to rebuild, restore and create thriving communities.

The grants will support five key areas.

1. Truist Cares to Connect: Using technology to connect people to resources. Partnering with organizations that provide broadband services to communities in need or technology devices for students to learn at home.
2. Truist Cares for Youth: Engaging teammates in virtual volunteerism and supporting underserved populations. Partnering with food banks to ensure low-income students have access to food or scholarships to the children of individuals with income disruption.
3. Truist Cares for Seniors: Delivering medical supplies and meals to the elderly. Partnering with organizations that provide food services, medical supplies and other senior assistance initiatives.
4. Truist Cares for Small Business: Providing funding and technical assistance to local and regional small businesses. Partnering with organizations that provide financial support and/or technical assistance to small businesses that are disrupted.
5. Truist Cares for the Workforce: Helping nonprofits assess needs and expand services to at-risk populations. Partnering with the company's sponsorship partners to support hourly workers affected by postponed or canceled sports and entertainment events.
